

NEW HEART BEAT DEVOTIONS

*"The only way to understand our design, direction and purpose is to seek our Creator."
Whichever*

I recently when to a newly remolded convenient store. I had to use the restroom, but I was confused when I got there. They did not have the normal men's and women's signs. Instead, they had individual small rooms, each with a full-length metal door and just a single toilet. Once inside, you turned the lock to say "occupied". It was like a bathroom on a plane, but the rooms had no sinks. The sinks and mirrors were in a common area for both sexes. It was very strange. Watch this video on this type of restroom.

I know our local schools are having problems dealing with individuals with sexual identity issues. One school district had to develop 5 different bathrooms: male, female, male who identify as female, female who identify as male and handicapped. They also had to deal with locker room issues and who can play on what team. I know colleges, universities, the military, the Olympics and soon professional sports are or will have the same issues. "The recommended minimum age for starting gender transition treatment, including sex hormones and surgeries could be started at age 14."¹ "However, there are now 18 states that have taken action to restrict medical transition treatments for minors."²

Many colleges and universities now have a policy "that students will be assigned a roommate(s) based on gender identity, not birth sex. Students may not make room, apartment, or roommate changes after the close of the online room selection process or after a room has been assigned by staff."³ These days, I would be afraid of who I would get as a roommate.

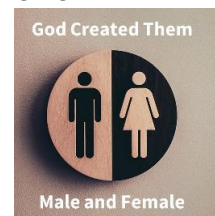

I knew someone, who I had worked with, that changed their identity. The clothes, the look, the actions and even the name was changed to female. I am not sure how I would interact with them and which company bathroom he or she or it uses.

We are already dropping Mr. Mrs., Miss. I guess soon we will be dropping he, him, her and she and use they, their, and them or whichever. Soon our birth certificates, medical records and legal documents will no longer list male or female. It is becoming really hard to tell who is what.

Yes, there are many in this world facing an identity crisis. They are struggling to understand who they are, what is their purpose in life, and does anyone really care? They think if they change, they will find the answer, but it only leads to more confusion and hardships. The only way to understand our design and direction is to seek our Creator. Pray for America who is changing who we are.
